The proposed new Royal school house will be the finest building of its class in the country. The money to be put into it, $75,000, is an advance guarantee of that. This is three times are cost of either the Kalulani or Heralt school buildings, though it is doubtrut.

The finish of the building will be second to none and the structure will be a credit to the city.

The need of the building is really pressing. So large has the school be-come that of late years it has been necessary to erect cottages almost all necessary to erect cottages almost all over the grounds to accommodate the overflow. These unsightly affairs are still occupied and are crowded to their doors. The main building of the school is in bad condition. It is old and is fast falling into decay. Besides, it is said to be insanitary. None of the cottages are built on approved plans, as regards light and air. regards light and air.

Mysterious Specialist Makes Sketches of the Rainy Town.

HILO, April 5.—When the transport Lennox was in Hilo there was on board a man by the name of J. H. Sullivan who, from all accounts, had greater confidence reposed in him by the Unit-ed States Government than the average agon master.

When he left on the Lennox he was under instructions to investigate Hilo with a view to ascertaining the pos-sibility for fortifying the place and its adaptability as a Quartermasters' cup-ply depot. He visited various points and from a point on the Kaumana road made sketches which he submitted with his report to Washington. A gentleman now in Hilo says this report was eminently favorable and that Mr. Sullivan will return to Hilo in about three months.

It was he who stopped the landing of the Landon while the Hardy of the Hardy of the Lennox mules in Hilo. He gave as reasons for his action that the mules were suffering from colds and that they were accustomed to the temperature of the steamer and he feared that to land them during the rain then prevailing would mean acute influenza which would result fatally.—Hawaii Heraid.

So much merchandise is coming here and so much is being shipped out that there is not room enough on the wharves to accommodate "The difficulty could be overcome in a measure by completing what is known as the harbor landing. A re-taining wall has already been built and it requires only filling in and blasting the rocks in front so as to give deeper water. I do not believe this would cost a great deal of money and it would be great improvement over the present.'

Call Physician of the Health Board Gives Impressions.

The last number of the Advocate, a church paper of San Francisco, con-tains a long letter from Dr. C. A. Davis, one of the call physicians of the Board of Health, on Honolulu and the plague. After reciting in a most interesting and accurate manner the appearance and progress of the plague and the writer's own work in the relief camps, Dr. Davis says:

or. Davis says:

"I am delighted with this wonderful island of Oahu. The display of almost infinite variety of flora, the beauty of sky and sea, the baimy softness and genial warmth of our breezes excel anything that I have seen or felt. The culture and advancement of the people here was a surprise to me. In culture and polish they will compare with any country. Our physicians especially are among the most cultured, amiable and intellectual men I have every met. In fact, I think them rather superior in these regards. We are fortunate in such times as these to have a man of Dr. Wood's resources at the head of our Board of Health.' His movements against the plague centers have been decisive and effectual. Our business men are liberal, large hearted and farseeing."

Public Sentiment Favors Burning Remaining Buildings at Kahului.

PAIA, April 5.-Maui's quarantine and also plague is at an end. Dr. Gar-vin has departed and the Island is clean again, excepting, of course, the little spot fenced up at Kahului. People are still wondering what is to be done final-ly with these infected buildings. The general opinion here is that the Gov-ernment should burn them and conclusively settle matters the plague in-

More especially should this be done to the small buildings in the Walluku end of Kahului, most of which are old buildings and occupied as residences. From these the danger of infection would be far greater than from a store or warehouse, provided all rats were killed, and the cost of burning the same would amount to but a few thousand dollars. So it is hoped that they will yet go up in smoke.

HOW THEY PAY TAXES.

Gosida Goes to Jail; Yamamoto Goes to Work.

Yosida and Yamamoto were each burned out in the Chinatown fire, and then spent some days in the detention camp. After that they went to the re-lief camp.

But all this time they neglected to pay their personal taxes for 1900. Jona-than Shaw or some of his deputies, heard of this neglect, and Shaw issued his warrant for their arrest. They were brought before the District court, found guilty of non-payment of taxes. Yosida had no friend to pay his taxes and costs, so be went to Oahu jail, where Yamamoto fared better—or worse. A friend came forward and paid the taxes and costs, $7.50, and then engaged him to work as a yardman at $2 a week. So that at the end of 28 days he will have paid his taxes and have fifty cents.

Yosida squares his account by fifteen days in jail: Yamamoto by twenty-eight days' work. Both get their board.
